NDP MIA on budget

Kingmakers quiet. Liberals and Tories both take shots at New Democrats for silence

JESSICA SMITH CROSS
jessica.smithcross@metronews.ca

Andrea Horwath and the NDP are withholding any response to Thursday's provincial budget until Friday morning, as the fate of the minority government hangs in the balance.

PC Leader Tim Hudak said before the budget that his party would not support the Liberals and reiterated that Thursday.

"This is a budget that's only focused on getting Liberal members re-elected," said Hudak. "They're putting the concerns of Liberal politicians and Liberal insiders ahead of the interests of real people."

He also took a shot at Horwath for not commenting on the budget, saying she chose to "duck and run" rather than "stand up for taxpayers."

Finance Minister Charles Sousa said Horwath was "letting Ontarians down" by staying quiet.

Sousa said his government is ready to campaign on the budget if the opposition votes it down, but added: "This is not about election-cycle decisions, nor should it ever be."

The NDP abstained on a vote in the house that could have felled the government.

Unifor and the Ontario Federation of Labour are urging the NDP to support the budget, while the Ontario Public Service Employees Union is against it and CUPE Ontario expressed concern.

In a letter, Premier Kathleen Wynne asked Horwath to give her response by May 8.

Is Rob Ford enough of a ladies' man to score at the ballot box?

Or will he go home alone this October?
A reputation for lewd behaviour and sexist talk could cost the mayor the support of women — and the election

Mayor Rob Ford is not playing very well to half the electorate, at least according to his record of stunningly sexist remarks.

While he has also demonstrated he has issues with lesbian, gay and trans people, people of colour and various ethnic backgrounds, it's his problem with women that has stood out recently.

Not scoring with the ladies could cost him the election, should he remain in the race until voting day. Or could it?

Even after the crack smoking scandal broke wide open and the video of him ranting how he would kill someone and "rip his f—ing throat out" surfaced, Ford could claim that women supported him.

But that was before his claim that women preferred cash in their Christmas stockings, and before he dragged his downcast wife, Renata, into a media mob to apologize for his infamous comment about "p—y" being plentiful on the menu back home.

Still, although his appeal to the fairer sex was lagging behind his male support, it was there. In fact, in one poll, published on the very day of his stunningly lewd statement, his approval rating ran about 4:3 male to female.

Which, considering the reported police visits to the Ford home in response to domestic-violence calls, former mayoralty candidate Sarah Thomson's charge that he fondled her at a public event, and Ford's claims on his now-cancelled Sunday talk-radio show that women need schooling on how politics work, was stronger than many would expect.

"The women who are still with him may be making their candidate choice or thinking about their vote more in the context of ideology, or some of the policies that he stands for," explains Queen's University professor Elizabeth Goodyear-Grant, a political scientist with expertise in gender and political behaviour.

"These women might have bought into all this rhetoric about overspending and how the gravy train is over. They may be motivated by considerations other than gender."

But we shouldn't be surprised, say observers, if Ford retains a core of female support.

"Why wouldn't he?" asks Brenda O'Neill, head of the political science department at the University of Calgary. "Why would we assume that misogynists wouldn't have women supporters?

"Not all women recognize misogyny for what it actually is." TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

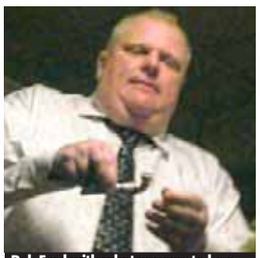
Ford's big mouth may swallow up his star power



Rob Ford with what appears to be a pipe in an image taken from Gawker.
GAWKER.COM/THE CANADIAN PRESS

There have been the drunken escapades, the scandalous videos, the crack smoking, the urinating, the getting caught in lie after lie after lie.

Mayor Rob Ford has withstood it all, touting himself as a victim of vindictive media, an everyman who has made mistakes, a former drinker who came to Jesus. Even as he left town for rehab on Thursday, he maintained he would run for mayor again this fall.

And it may be what he's said, rather than what he's done, that will be his downfall.

Society tends to be somewhat lenient toward a certain degree of substance use (or abuse), said Rania Walker, managing partner of SparQ Street Communications.

"We've all done something," said Walker. "Those things we can understand because we can all relate. But when people spew vitriol or they start making lewd comments, there's a personality issue there."

Robert Thompson, a public communications professor at Syracuse University, said human history is full of characters fulfilling the role of drunken entertainer. Ford has become a celebrity for his drunken antics and unabashed appearances on U.S. TV, including a memorable appearance on Jimmy Kimmel's late-night show.

"For a very large number of people, there is a hierarchy of the kind of things that are forgivable and can even be perceived as funny and lovable — and the kinds of things that are a lot less forgivable, and not funny, and certainly not lovable," said Thompson.

"When you start saying sexist things, that starts losing a lot of people for you ... And racist and homophobic stuff almost always becomes immediately toxic." TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Stintz responds

"Last night, we saw yet another example of why the City of Toronto needs new leadership," mayoral candidate Karen Stintz said in a press conference at city hall on Thursday. "Rob Ford's comments are gross. Rob Ford is not Toronto. Toronto is tired of being gripped in this sad, sad mess."

- Despite the comments, Stintz refused to call for Ford to resign. "Only the people of Toronto can remove Rob Ford from office," she said.

The owner of an exclusive Toronto nightclub who provided booze at last year's two Ford Fests says he is not close to Rob Ford and any interactions he has had with the mayor "were of a purely social nature."

Muzik nightclub owner Zlatko Starkovski issued a statement Thursday distancing himself from Toronto's scandal-plagued mayor, after the Torstar News Service reported Wednesday that Ford recently spent two wild nights at the establishment.

Eyewitnesses told Torstar they saw Ford drink heavily, appear impaired, and babble about his wife and children at a party at the club on March 15.

At that event, eyewitnesses say, Ford ran into pop star Justin Bieber, who enraged the mayor by asking if he had brought any crack to smoke.

Eyewitnesses at another wild party in April said they saw Ford doing lines of cocaine.

Torstar emailed and called Starkovski several times seeking comment before Wednesday's story, but never heard back.

In his statement Thursday, Starkovski said that Ford had attended Muzik nightclub three times since January, but stressed that he had never seen the mayor use illicit drugs in the club.

"I and my staff do not tolerate illegal activity of any kind on our premises," Starkovski said.

He also rebuffed any suggestion that he is a friend of the mayor, saying that he and Ford "are not close" and "have never had an interaction outside a professional setting."

"Comments in the media attributed to me about Mayor Ford's status at Muzik are totally false," Starkovski said.

Three sources with knowledge of Ford's visits to Muzik told Torstar that Starkovski has told staff at the club, "Rob Ford is our best customer. His money is no good here."

A senior municipal source who spoke to Torstar said Ford likes going to Muzik because it is "a place he feels comfortable and safe doing whatever he wants to do."

Starkovski acknowledged in his statement Thursday that his company provided the sale and service of alcohol at last summer's Ford Fest events, "as we do at a number of large events in the city, and we did so for a fee."

Alcohol and Gaming Commission catering forms signed personally by Starkovski show he held the liquor licences for the July 5 and Sept. 20 Ford Fests.

Inquiries to Rob Ford and his brother, Coun. Doug Ford, as to how much they paid for the booze went unanswered.

The cost of the Liberal pension plan

By the numbers. A guide to a key part of the province's budget

JESSICA SMITH CROSS
jessica.smithcross@metronews.ca

Reaction to the Liberal government's proposal for an Ontario pension plan — modelled on the Canada Pension Plan and mandatory for all employees who don't have a comparable workplace pension — was swift and divided after the budget was tabled Thursday.

Under the plan outlined in the budget, employees would contribute 1.9 per cent of up to $90,000 in annual earnings, which would be matched by their employers.

According to a budget estimate, this would result in an annual cost to employers of approximately $1.75 billion.

Like the CPP, benefits would be earned based on contributions made, so older workers nearer retirement would not benefit as much as young people just beginning their working lives, and young workers would not subsidize older generations.

The budget provides some examples, in 2014 dollars, which are contingent on specifics — including the 1.9 rate — of the plan and implementation of it alongside the CPP. The CPP rate is 4.95 per cent of up to $52,500 annual earnings.

- Someone who works for 40 years earning $45,000 a year would contribute $788 annually and receive $6,410 annually in retirement from the ORPP for combined ORPP and CPP benefits of $17,090 a year
- Someone who works for 40 years earning $70,000 a year would contribute $1,263 annually and receive $9,970 annually in retirement from the ORPP for combined ORPP and CPP benefits of $22,430 a year
- Someone who works for 40 years earning $90,000 a year would contribute $1,643 annually and receive $12,815 annually in retirement from the ORPP for combined ORPP and CPP benefits of $25,275 a year.

"We all acknowledge that two thirds of Ontarians don't have a pension plan, they know they don't have enough," said Finance Minister Charles Sousa, when asked if he was worried about getting his party re-elected while asking people to pay more of their incomes. "I worry about the livelihood and well-being of Ontario."

PC Leader Tim Hudak and his party oppose the plan and argue it will cost Ontario 100,000 jobs over 10 years, based on government projections concerning payroll taxes.

The Canadian Federation of Independent Business issued a release stating it is "vehemently opposed" to the proposed plan.

"In one of the worst Ontario budgets ever, the government is picking the pockets of Ontarians, especially the middle class, to pay for it," said CFIB president Dan Kelly.

"The majority of Ontarians who are struggling to save for their retirement simply can't afford to," said Kelly.

On the labour side, the Ontario Federation of Labour and the Canadian Labour Congress both lauded the plan.

And the NDP?

Andrea Horwath and the NDP were silent on the pension plan and on the budget as a whole Thursday. With Tim Hudak's PCs determined to vote the budget down and the Liberals out of office, the minority government's fate is in NDP hands. Horwath is scheduled to hold a press conference Friday morning.

Dylan was someone who noticed things.

His mom was someone who didn't.

One Friday in January was a day like any other until...

Music!

The high notes soar to the ceiling. The low notes swoop to the floor. All the notes swirl and sweep around the blur of people rushing here and rushing there. The music is telling an exciting story. It makes the hairs on the back of Dylan's neck tickle.

"Mom, wait!"

The man with the violin sways this way and that. His fingers move quickly. His bow dances across the strings. The skittering notes make Dylan want to dance too. Then the music slows and the man's eyes close as if the music is carrying him from bustle– bustle–bustle to somewhere far, far away.

"Please, Mom? Can't we stop? Please?"
If only they could listen for even a minute!
"Not today."

Shootings test U.S. 'stand your ground' laws

Intruders falling into fatal encounters. Two recent cases involve people who said they were afraid of homes being burgled again

A Montana man is accused of setting a trap and blasting a shotgun into his garage, killing a 17-year-old German exchange student. A Minnesota man is convicted of lying in wait in his basement for two teenagers and killing them during a break-in.

The two recent cases have intensified the debate about America's so-called "stand your ground" laws: Do laws that allow private citizens to protect their property also let them set a trap and wait for someone to kill?

In Montana, Markus Kaarma told investigators his home had been burgled twice before Sunday's shooting death of Diren Dede. The night of the shooting, Kaarma and his partner, Janelle Pflager, left their garage door open and Pflager left her purse in the garage, prosecutors said.

When they heard sounds, Kaarma said he took his shotgun and without speaking fired four times. Dede was hit in the head and the arm.

In Minnesota, Byron Smith, a 65-year-old retiree, was convicted of premeditated murder Tuesday in the shooting of Nick Brady, 17, and Haile Kifer, 18, after the cousins broke into his home in 2012. Smith's attorney said burglars had previously hit his client's home, and he was afraid.

Prosecutors said Smith moved his truck to make it look as though no one was home, and waited in the basement with food, water and two guns.

What the laws say

- Montana's law says a person is justified in using deadly force to prevent an assault or a forcible felony.
- Minnesota law allows the use of deadly force in a home to prevent a felony, but it must be considered a reasonable response.

Outrage over kidnapped Nigerian schoolgirls grows

A police officer stands guard Thursday as outraged Nigerians took to the streets in Lagos for another day to demand that their government do more to rescue more than 200 schoolgirls kidnapped two weeks ago by Islamic extremists from the government Chibok Girls Secondary School. 1,000 cases? Tories refuse to budge on inquiry over missing aboriginal women

The Conservative government is resisting renewed calls for an inquiry into murdered and missing aboriginal women and girls despite a media report that suggests there may be hundreds more cases than previously thought.

Public Safety Minister Steven Blaney was asked Thursday to finally call a inquiry in light of a report by the Aboriginal Peoples Television Network that Canada may be home to more than 1,000 cases of murdered and missing women.

His answer, in short: no.

Instead, Blaney launched a partisan broadside against the NDP's refusal to support the government's budget bill, which includes a five-year, $25-million renewal of money aimed at stopping violence against aboriginal women and girls.

Sparks fly over Tories' electoral reform bill

Fair Elections Act.
Proposed changes to law will cause hundreds of thousands to lose right to vote, critics charge

Among the bill's provisions

- Voters who come to polls without documents can't use voter information cards as fall-back ID.
- New limitations are proposed on citizens vouching for the identity of others.

The Conservative bill to tighten up election laws is in the final stages of review at a House of Commons committee, and things are getting ugly.

After long hours of scrutiny of the Fair Elections Act's many clauses, only two technical amendments by the opposition had been approved by Thursday afternoon.

New Democrat MP David Christopherson's frustration boiled over when the committee rejected a proposal to ensure voter information cards are marked prominently to indicate they are not considered valid ID.

The proposed Act has eliminated the cards as a fall-back ID for voters who discover they don't have the right documents when they show up to vote.

"We know, and Canadians know, that this is all about trying to get the fix in for the Conservatives in every way they can, and that voter suppression is alive and well in the government of Canada," said Christopherson.

The Conservatives countered that the chief electoral officer already has authority over the markings on voter identification cards, and the NDP amendment was not needed.

The opposition has argued that hundreds of thousands of voters, including First Nations, the homeless and students, will be disenfranchised by eliminating the use of the voter cards, as well as by new limitations on citizens vouching for the identity of others. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Military should withdraw: Putin

Ukraine crisis. Ukrainian president renews draft amid 'threats of encroachment'

Russian President Vladimir Putin said Thursday that Ukraine should withdraw its military units from the eastern and southern regions of the country, where anti-government insurgents are seizing buildings, but hours later, Ukraine's acting president ordered the military draft be renewed as the unrest intensifies.

Although Ukraine last year announced plans to end military conscription and transfer to an all-volunteer force, Oleksandr Turchynov said in his order that the draft must be renewed in light of "threats of encroachment on Ukraine's territorial integrity and interference by Russia in the internal affairs of Ukraine."

Moscow has consistently denounced Ukrainian security forces' largely ineffectual "anti-terrorist" operation against the eastern insurgents and warned they shouldn't commit violence against civilians. In a telephone conversation with German Chancellor Angela Merkel, Putin said the removal of military units from the south and east was the "main thing."

Turchynov's order didn't specify where conscript-bolstered forces could be deployed. Earlier in the week, he said police and security forces had been effectively "helpless" against insurgents in the Donetsk and Luhansk regions, and that efforts should be focused on preventing its spread to other parts of the country.

Infrastructure lacking

Canada can't help Ukraine as energy supplier

Canada has little hope of reaping any kind of energy or resource windfall from the crisis in Ukraine.

That message was delivered Thursday to a House of Commons committee in testimony by energy experts from Alberta, Europe, and Ukraine. The committee is hearing evidence on whether there are opportunities for Canada to export oil and gas to Europe and help wean Ukraine off its dependence on Russian energy.

The natural resources committee was told that Canada is the better part of a decade away from having the pipelines and other infrastructure necessary to be a meaningful energy supplier to Europe.

Russia supplies most of Ukraine's natural gas, giving it an economic lever over the Ukrainian military — one it is currently exercising.

The testimony offered a sobering counterpoint to the Harper government's public enthusiasm about increased Canadian energy exports to Europe.

Missing Canadian filmmaker found dead at temples

The family of Dave Walker, a Canadian filmmaker who went missing in Cambodia in February, says he was found dead on Thursday.

A statement issued on behalf of Walker's family says his body was reportedly discovered by a child at the Angkor Wat temples in Siem Reap, Cambodia.

Cambodian law enforcement officials told the family it appeared Walker had died several weeks ago.

The statement says a doctor at the site was unable to determine a cause of death and an autopsy will be held to try to determine how and when Walker died.

Forensic officer Pheng Pich says there are no initial signs of foul play.

U.S. colleges facing sexual assault complaint inquiries

Fifty-five colleges and universities — big and small, public and private — are being investigated over their handling of sexual abuse complaints, the U.S. Education Department revealed Thursday.

The department's release of the list is unprecedented and comes as the Obama administration seeks to shed greater light on the issue of sexual assault in higher education and how it is being handled.

Catherine E. Lhamon, the assistant secretary of education for civil rights, said in a statement that a school's presence on the list does not mean that it has violated the law but that an investigation of complaints is underway.

Man vs. environment

"The reality is that you can take the best people in the world and — after a long period of time — things will start to slowly break down because people are unhappy with the environment..."

Robotics engineer Simon Engler has survived the rigors of a Mars mission without ever setting his space boots down on the Red Planet.

As part of a NASA-funded simulation, Engler hunkered down inside a two-storey dome on the northern slope of the Mauna Loa volcano. There, he and his fellow guinea pigs encountered "red-flag problems" related to inter-planetary exploration.

The HI-SEAS crew battled bouts of separation anxiety, yucky pre-packaged diets and stinky feet during the four-month social experiment staged on a barren lava field. It explored the emotional strain of being isolated for months or years at a time, with others.

"It's not a normal environment for a human to live in for a long period of time," Engler told Metro. "The reality is that you can take the best people in the world and — after a long period of time — things will start to slowly break down because people are unhappy with the environment.

"NASA really needs to know how to mitigate it before they actually take this mission."

Life on Hawaii's Big Island may sound like reality TV. But don't tell that to Engler, who sloughs off the much-publicized Mars One project for its "questionable financial responsibilities."

Engler, who at the time was a PhD student at the University of Calgary, says he pitched a robotic companion project as part of the application process for HI-SEAS, and was chosen from a pool of 700 applicants.

He describes his colleagues as brainy, "astronaut-like" folks who specialize in fields such as nanotechnology, geology and physics. They were a mixed bag of Type-A and Type–B personalities, which was supposedly the right mix during the dress rehearsal.

"If you have a balance between personality types then things will work out in the long run," said Engler, who is now helping out with Round 2 of the Mars simulation.

People problems aside, human settlers will also need to contend with supremely harsh environmental conditions on the freeze-dried planet. Hyper-arid soil, wicked dust storms and seasonal geysers provide formidable challenges.

The average temperature hangs around -53 C, although lows can be twice as chilly, according to the Canadian Space Agency. And spacesuits are needed to prevent the astronauts' skin and lungs from exploding due to low air pressure.

Finding water remains another massive hurdle for many researchers, as it's deemed a key indicator to whether the planet is hospitable to life.

"You're unlikely to find flowing water on the surface unless it was salt-rich. But even then it would be incredibly rare," said Chris Hugenholtz from the U of C. "That water's going to have to come from underground."

He noted there's plenty of evidence of "water-ice", or water in the form of ice, in the polar caps. But thirsty space explorers will also have to keep an eye out for spectacular geysers, which stem from a build-up of carbon dioxide gas below the south polar ice sheet. The jet-like eruptions are known to spew sand and dust hundreds of feet into the air.

Dust devils are known to blanket the entire planet over days, which Hugenholtz noted could impede space crews' solar-powered gear.

"There are some bizarre things occurring on the surface that they're going to have to deal with if they're in those more polar regions of Mars looking for water," he said.

Located at about 8,000 feet elevation, the Mars-like HI-SEAS habitat was free of cultural norms, endangered species and lush greenery. It featured a two-storey dome, enclosing a volume of 13,570 cubic feet. COURTESY OF DR. SIAN PROCTOR

A human expedition to Mars is proposed within the next 15 years. In the meantime, there are programs in place that attempt to recreate the conditions of the Red Planet. For Day 3 of our feature, Metro spoke with a guinea pig about his 'mission' and a professor about possible governance in deep space

LIVING UNDER MARTIAN LAW

Move over, Martians — humans are coming to town. But how would early space crusaders organize after putting footprints on the Red Planet? Paul Fairie, who teaches municipal governance at the University of Calgary, was nice enough to play along and offer some realpolitik answers to hypothetical questions:

METRO: Do the first Mars occupiers need to establish a local government? What have we learned from Lord of the Flies?

PF: If the first settlers were all initially astronauts and therefore mostly from a military background, there probably wouldn't be a need for local government right away, since they'd have a chain of command in place already. However, once a generation or two had passed and the population was no longer primarily military, I'd expect that they'd want to establish a local government to take care of basic local needs that couldn't just be completely dictated from Earth, like the fair distribution of resources and making sure society is functional. Otherwise, the colony would run the risk of being completely dictatorial, with us Earth-bound humans dictating laws to second- and third-generation Martians.

METRO: What's the best type of governing structure for this situation? Plutocracy?

PF: I imagine something of a two-stage process. First, a proper non-democracy where military ranks dictated who had power. This would work well with a small group of military-trained astronauts. After a while, we'd probably see the need for a local government for self-regulatory matters. At this point, we'd probably have a democracy — luckily the settlers would have the benefit of hindsight. What would be really exciting here is that the form the government could take would be quite unpredictable, because they would have the rare opportunity to make a completely new government.

HI-SEAS crew engineer Simon Engler used the Husky robot while testing machine operation in bulky spacesuits. He also explored how robotic companions ease loneliness. COURTESY OF DR. YAJAIRA SIERRA-SASTRE

METRO: How should Mars residents be taxed? Would an Alberta-style flat tax be an alien concept?

PF: Taxation would be a tricky one for a while since most of the resources will have to be brought in from Earth. If they were using an Earthling currency, would they be buying products and services from each other? Would they create their own currency? If so, how would they decide the initial allotment of funds? At least until the colony was big enough, I'd have to imagine a bartering economy would spring up for basic goods and services ("I'll trade you a hair cut for some Martian key lime pie."), and perhaps a social obligation to contribute some labour to the settlement might spring up before a currency economy would.

TTC SERVICE LEVELS REVIEWED, REVISED CONTINUALLY TO ADDRESS DEMAND

ANDY BYFORD
CEO
TORONTO TRANSIT COMMISSION

At this week's TTC Board meeting, a number of motions were tabled that asked staff to review options in an effort to expand bus service and reduce crowding.

Our role at the TTC is to provide a level of transit service that meets demand, but also provides our customers with a comfortable ride. To that end, we continually evaluate route capacity and reliability that provides the best possible service within the available budget.

Our planners use passenger load data and forecasting models to predict where service capacity needs to be adjusted, i.e. adding buses at certain times of the day or night. The TTC revises its service schedules every six weeks, and once a change is identified and approved, it is implemented.

Factors that need to be considered include the number of buses and operators required for any change, garage capacity and seasonal changes that respond to temporary increases or decreases to customer numbers.

Major changes require a longer lead time to allow additional buses to be acquired and operators to be hired and trained. Such large-scale changes also require TTC Board approval to ensure that scarce funds are being invested to address the greatest need.

I will keep you updated through this column on the progress of any major service changes approved for implementation.

TTC UNVEILS NEW JANITOR UNIFORMS

The TTC is rolling out new professional uniforms for janitorial staff as part the Customer Charter's commitment to modernizing the TTC. Soon, customers will start seeing new uniforms on operators and collectors.

In addition to new janitor uniforms, the TTC also met a charter commitment to complete spring cleaning at every subway station. The cleaning blitz included pressure washing walls, floors and pillars at all bus bays, subway stations, passenger pick-up locations, station entrances and train platforms, with special attention to gum removal, graffiti, station signage, telephones, benches, trash containers, elevators and stairs.

Customers can expect even shinier stations this year as two-thirds of TTC station floors are reconditioned to a polished finish and 70 per cent of platform lighting is washed and/or replaced to ensure platforms are well-lit and safe.

New uniforms and station cleanliness are part of the TTC's promise to improve our appearance to ensure the TTC is a transit system that makes Toronto proud. For more information on current and future commitments in the TTC's Customer Charter, visit www.ttc.ca.

SPEED RESTRICTION BETWEEN VICTORIA PARK AND KENNEDY STATIONS ON LINE 2 (BLOOR-DANFORTH)

The TTC is working to rehabilitate and replace track near Victoria Park Station. Though much maintenance work is done overnight, the complexity of the track upgrades – replacing the cross-over section of rails, as well as the track bed and switches in the area – will also require weekend closures between Woodbine and Kennedy stations on May 10-11 and May 24-25 and again in June.

Until this work is complete, trains must pass through the area between Victoria Park and Kennedy stations slower than normal to ensure the safety of customers and employees. Riders can expect their travel times through this area to be twice what it would normally be. Regular service is expected to resume at the end of June 2014.

The TTC thanks its customers for their patience as we work to improve transit in Toronto.

Doomed ferry video released

Tragic end. More than 300 people are dead or missing in the sinking aftermath

Soon after the ferry began to tilt, there was nervous laughter, jokes about the Titanic and talk of selfies and Facebook posts from the doomed high school students huddled below deck.

But the lighthearted atmosphere soon turned serious as the listing worsened. Fear began building, and one student asked, "Am I really going to die?"

The shaky video — at times poignant and heartbreaking as the teens said last words to their loved ones — was found on the cellphone belonging to 17-year-old Park Su-hyeon when his body was recovered after the disaster on the morning of April 16 off South Korea.

The boy's father, Park Jong-dae, provided it Thursday to The Associated Press, saying he wanted to show the world the conditions aboard the Sewol as it sank. He earlier released it to select South Korean media.

About 220 bodies, mostly from inside the submerged vessel, have been recovered. More than 80 per cent of the victims were students from a high school in Ansan, south of Seoul, on their way to the tourist island of Jeju for a school trip. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

'No Arctic Oil'. Activists detained after skirmish with Russian tanker

Dutch police say they detained 31 Greenpeace activists who attempted to prevent a Russian tanker carrying the first oil produced by a new offshore platform in the Arctic Ocean from mooring at Rotterdam Port on Thursday.

The environmental group sent two ships, plus a fleet of rubber rafts, paragliders and activists on shore, to meet the Mikhail Ulyanov, a tanker chartered by Russia's state-controlled oil company, Gazprom OAO.

Activists painted the words "No Arctic Oil" in white letters on the hull of the Russian tanker. After several hours, the Ulyanov was able to dock safely.

Greenpeace opposes oil production inside the Arctic Circle, warning of the danger of a spill in a pristine and difficult-to-reach area — as well as the threat of worsening global warming caused by using fossil fuels. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sure, I'll move for a job ... for a 20% raise

Oh, plus ... all moving expenses and a $100,000 non-taxable, interest-free loan

A new survey suggests fewer than half of Canadians are willing to move for employment opportunities.

The survey, conducted by Ipsos Reid for the Canadian Employee Relocation Council, asked more than 2,000 Canadians whether they'd move either within their provinces or to other parts of the country for a job.

Only 10 per cent of respondents indicated an eagerness to move, while a third said they could be persuaded for the right job and the right incentives.

Council head Stephen Cryne says the findings are troubling and underscore some of the challenges facing businesses looking to attract highly skilled labour. The council advocates labour mobility.

Cryne says the study proves more work needs to be done to promote the broader benefits of labour mobility in Canada.

The top incentive selected by those respondents who said they would consider a move to another part of the country is a 20 per cent raise in pay, plus all moving expenses being covered by the employer.

More than half of respondents also said governments could play a role in enticing them to move by permitting employers to provide a tax-free housing allowance for up to six months to allow them to settle in a new location.

Almost half said employers should also be allowed to provide non-taxable, interest-free loans of up to $100,000 for the purchase of a home in the new location. THE CANADIAN PRESS

1 Racism gets a smackdown. Sacramento Mayor Kevin Johnson called it "a defining moment in history" and Al Sharpton "a bold and historic move." Just months into his new role as NBA Commissioner, Adam Silver cemented his legacy already by banning LA Clippers owner Donald Sterling from the league after his racist remarks.

2 Selfie with Jim Carrey. When the A-list actor landed at Peterborough airport Friday, he showed his down-to-earth side, posing in pictures on the tarmac with a bunch of high school students and in a selfie tweeted by student Zach Premate. The only thing that would have made it more epic is if Jerry Seinfeld was in the pic, too — he was in Peterborough a day later at the same airport.

3 Runaway blimp. It was the talk of the town this week as a two-storey, 21-metre-long Budweiser blimp in the shape of a hockey goal light broke loose from its tether in Saint John, N.B. Yep, this must have been a tricky one for Transport Canada, who was in hot (air?) pursuit. The blimp eventually landed in the woods northeast of the city, no doubt feeling a bit deflated.

4 Let's go Raptors. Coming off their first road playoff victory in 13 years in Brooklyn, the Raptors took care of business at home in a nail-biter Wednesday night, and now can close things out in Game 6 Friday in Brooklyn. Everything is on the line for an amazing, courageous team having a Cinderella season.

5 Stop making sense. Parks Canada announced plans to install Wi-Fi hotspots in up to 50 parks this year. So next time you're enjoying some solitude in the woods, you can stop and tell the world on Twitter, Instagram, Facebook and Snapchat.

6 National Canadian Film Day. REEL Canada had a novel idea: to do a National Canadian Film Day to draw attention to all the amazing films being made in this country. So Wednesday, people took to social media to talk about homegrown cinematic gems using the hashtag #CANFILMDAY. Beautiful thing. My fave two: Meatballs and The Sweet Hereafter.

7 Another one bites the Cyber Dust. Hailed as the Snapchat of words, the Cyber Dust app allows you to send a message to someone that will disappear forever 30 seconds after being opened by the recipient. Yes, you are now the James Bond of texting. Go wild.

8 Superhero supermovie. Awesome superhero fun, as Warner Bros. studio announced plans to make a Justice League movie. Superman, Batman, Wonder Woman, Aquaman, Flash and Green Lantern together in one movie? My goodness, I'm in superhero heaven.

9 RoFo back on the crack? Twitter blew up after Ford was caught on tape again allegedly smoking crack cocaine. He has announced a leave of absence from his duties as mayor to get treatment for his addiction. May this be his rock bottom, so he finally gets the real help he needs.

Q&A

Man tries to collect every VHS copy of '90s classic

Twenty-six-year-old Ryan Beitz is a collector of sorts: He aims to own every VHS copy of the 1994 classic Speed. So stirring is Beitz's pointless task that it compelled the movie's screenwriter Graham Yost to use these touching words: "Other than world peace and ending hunger, I can think of no greater cause than what this one brave and visionary man has embarked upon." The great feat doesn't end there, though. Metro chats to the zany collector about The World Speed Project:

Obviously what you're doing is a waste of time, so why are you so committed? There's no real good reason for it. I'm dedicated only because it's totally pointless and stupid. I'm totally dedicated to the uselessness if it.

Does it annoy you that people are trying to sabotage your goal by holding onto copies? People can try to thwart me but they are going to die and then I'll have my copy.

Any words for the haters? I would say to them keep doing it because whether you love or hate the World Speed Project but especially if you hate it, you're a part of it.

Do you play each copy to check it works? No, definitely not, but I did at first. Actually it paid off this one time because there was a copy of the Flintstones that was in a Speed case with the Speed label. But I figured that one out and I'll find that other copy.

Among the things that add tedium to the absurd commuting times in some of our larger cities is that they tend to be caused by similar snafus. A blown tire. A fender bender. Every now and again an overturned truck of marbles or bees will spice things up a bit.

What we never get is a gang of adorable lion cubs and their watchful lionesses waking up after a long snooze on a stretch of sun-heated asphalt. For that kind of delay, you're going to need your daily commute to take you through South Africa's Kruger National Park, which we assume is named after the claws of those who live there. Spinning the same old story

Reel Guys

RICHARD CROUSE AND MARK BRESLIN

The Amazing Spider-Man 2 is a rehash of the origin story. CONTRIBUTED

Synopsis

Fresh out of high school, Peter Parker (Andrew Garfield) is being pulled in two different directions. He loves Gwen Stacy (Emma Stone) but is troubled by a promise he made to her late father (Dennis Leary) that he would never let anything bad happen to her. Meanwhile, Peter's old friend Harry Osborn (Dane De Haan), heir to the Oscorp fortune, is battling a hereditary disease he thinks can be cured with a dose of Spider-Man's blood and Max Dillon (Jamie Foxx), a low level Oscorp electrical engineer, has an accident that rewires him into Electro, a villain with the power to control electricity.

The Amazing Spider-Man 2.

Franchise needs a more exciting story to keep the Reel Guys caught in its web

Richard: Mark, at two-and-a-half hours, the new Spider-Man movie is almost equal parts action and story.

The first 15 minutes contains not one, but two wild action sequences that'll make your eyeballs dance.

If you haven't had your fill of special effects for the week, your thirst will be quenched early on.

Then the onslaught of story begins.

Jammed packed with plot, bad guys and lots and lots of moony-eyed love, it's the busiest superhero movie in recent memory.

Did you get caught up in the film's web?

Mark: No, Richard, the movie got caught in its own web. Too much of the film is like the last one, which was very good, but do we need to rehash the origin story yet again?

The action sequences are good, and they'd better be, because the plot and characters are feeling kind of tired by now.

Not that there aren't good things in the movie.

I liked Jamie Foxx's villain, who was sadly sympathetic in a Frankenstein kind of way. And Dane DeHaan, as tortured Oscorp heir Harry Osborn, has the best scenes in the picture, with an otherworldly look that reminded me of a British fascist circa 1936 or Tilda Swinton's illegitimate son; I'm not sure which.

RC: I thought he kind of looks like the Evil Annoying Orange with a better haircut. To each his own.

He does have some of the best scenes in the film, and this is a movie with several well-crafted dramatic moments.

Too bad most of them feel like they're lifted from another movie and dropped into this one as placeholders for the action sequences.

Peter Parker is shedding tears over his love life one minute, swinging on webby vines through the streets the next.

Both tones are well executed, but they often feel forced together.

MB: The movie seems more like a pastiche than a sequel.

Sally Field, bless her Norma Rae heart, invests her part with the intensity of a Eugene O'Neill play.

Jamie Foxx makes a sympathetic villain in the Frankenstein mode even though he's made up like a rogue member of Blue Man Group. But Richard, why is Spidey so cocky this go round? His awkwardness is usually part of his charm.

RC: That's more from the comic books.

The Sam Raimi Spider-Man movies didn't use Spidey's sarcasm, but on the pages of the comics he wasn't shy to let loose with some trash talking.

MB: The movie is watchable and intermittently entertaining, but the franchise really needs to invigorate itself to keep me caught in its web.

Cinco de Mayo: The Battle

Director. Rafa Lara, Paul Ragsdale

Stars. Kuno Becker

Cinco de Mayo, La Batalla chronicles the story of Mexico's Battle of Puebla, the most important battle in Mexico's history. When the unbeatable French army invades Mexico to set up a monarchy, General Ignacio Zaragoza, played by Kuno Becker (Goal!, From Prada to Nada), must defend the city of Puebla, commanding a poorly armed and outnumbered troop of men.

The must-see films of summer

Sorry, summer moviegoers, but this May through August you have only three superhero movies to choose from. What's worse, only two of those are from Marvel — and only one of those is part of the official Marvel Cinematic Universe. Instead you'll have a treasure trove of alternative blockbusters featuring bitter witches, mythic beefcakes, sky-high lizards, giant robots and giant turtles.

MATT PRIGGE
Metro World News in New York

Godzilla (May 16)

High-concept premise: The fire-breathing, rampaging lizard of Japanese cinema is back — only it's definitely not the campy 1998 one that no one likes because it's just awful.

Superpower: Its cast is nothing to sneeze at: Bryan Cranston, Elizabeth Olsen, Sally Hawkins, David Strathairn and … holy crap, Juliette Binoche is in this? The tone looks serious. In fact, not unlike the original Japanese version of Godzilla from 1954, which is in fact quite grim.

Weakness: Director Gareth Edwards last tried to subvert the monster movie with Monsters, which ended up being packed with indie clichés. This could get too dour. Also, let's not forget, this is still freakin' Godzilla.

X-Men: Days of Future Past (May 23)

High-concept premise: The X-Men Babies prequels soldier on, and if you're sick of young and dashing Magneto, then don't worry: Wolverine and many others from the first three films have been shoehorned into it.

Superpower: Nuts to Godzilla: This has the best cast of any summer movie, with Michael Fassbender, Jennifer Lawrence, Patrick Stewart, Ian McKellen, plus newbies Peter Dinklage and Omar Sy of "The Intouchables."

Weakness: This sounds like a lot of characters to deal with in only 130 minutes. Good luck with that.

Edge of Tomorrow (June 6)

High-concept premise: Tom Cruise, 51, plays an alien-battling soldier caught in a time loop. Emily Blunt is also there.

Superpower: This is based on a beloved science-fiction novel, All You Need Is Kill, by Hiroshi Sakurazaka, though they've changed the title.

Weakness: Are they insane? All You Need Is Kill is a GREAT title. The new one sounds like an Epcot ride — or an Isaac Asimov book that doesn't feature alien fighting.

Jupiter Ascending (July 18)

High-concept premise: The Wachowskis tanked with Speed Racer and Cloud Atlas. So, naturally, they've been given another $150 million to do another nutty idea.

Superpower: The Wachowskis (and the studio) are no doubt gambling on stars Mila Kunis, Channing Tatum and Eddie Redmayne to pull people through the weirdness.

Weakness: Speed Racer is visually unique and Cloud Atlas ambitious, but both are kind of drags.

Transformers: Age of Extinction (June 27)

High-concept premise: Shia LaBeouf and that model he was banging are no more — the franchise about giant robots with millions of headache-inducing parts has decamped for Marky Mark.

Superpower: It has 100 percent less Shia.

Weakness: It's a freakin' Michael Bay "Transformers" movie. Moreover, Marky Mark looks awfully solemn in the press images.

Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles (August 8)

High-concept premise: The '80s pizza-eating reptiles finally get a reboot after the 2007 film TMNT didn't quite bring them back.

Superpower: This one's superpower is probably nostalgia, with a sizeable marketing budget.

Weakness: Like all live-action versions of the franchise — including the ones from the '90s that briefly featured Elias Koteas as Casey Jones — this looks too serious a film considering it's about turtles who eat junk food and are named after famous painters.

Filmmakers are sour on sugar industry

Fed Up. New documentary compares processed food business to the tobacco industry

STEVE GOW
scene@metronews.ca

Fed Up opens next Friday in Toronto. CONTRIBUTED

The women behind the documentary Fed Up really hope to do for the food movement what An Inconvenient Truth did for climate change. And they may just achieve it.

"This is the whole plan of Fed Up," said Oscar-winning producer Laurie David, who, not so coincidentally, also produced An Inconvenient Truth.

"There are solutions that you can take as an individual. (We don't need) governments to start talking (about eating healthy). The fridge is right in your kitchen."

A comprehensive and provocative look at the stirring reasons behind America's obesity crisis, Fed Up targets the misinformation being spooned out by the food industry (most notably the sugar producers) and how our children are doomed with diabetes and shorter lifespans because of it.

In fact, the rise against processed foods truly echoes the movement against cigarettes from decades ago.

"That's the underlying premise of the film — put real information in front of people so that all of us as citizens have perspective not shaped by the food industry," said co-producer Heather Reisman, comparing the one-time positive spin of smoking by cigarette marketers.

"Like all businesses, (a food company's) job is to keep growing, keep getting bigger and to do that they're trying to get people addicted to what they're doing."

While the Katie Couric-narrated documentary uncovers heartbreaking true-life struggles and debunks the myths about diet and exercise fads, what the filmmakers truly hope Fed Up does is initiate personal action as well as create a stigma against celebrities selling sugar to kids.

"If soda is the tobacco of our generation then Beyoncé is the Marlboro Man," said director Stephanie Soechtig of the celebrity cola spokesperson.

"We need to have that same shame attached to it because she is endorsing a product that is killing kids."

†"$50 Off Any New Agreement" offer is not applicable to cash price and reduces the total dollar amount of payments necessary to acquire ownership on any new agreement entered into April 28, 2014 through May 24, 2014, when offer ends. Product availability may vary by store. Free or reduced rent offers will not reduce total rent or purchase-option amounts. You will not own the merchandise until the total amount necessary to acquire ownership is paid in full or you exercise your early purchase option. Ownership is optional. Offer good while supplies last and cannot be combined with any other promotion. See Store Manager for complete details. BASEMENT FLOODS ARE ON THE RISE.

DON'T LET YOUR BASEMENT BE NEXT.

Together we can stop heavy rainfall, melting snow and runoff from ending up in your basement. At the City, we're doing our part by continually updating and maintaining Toronto's complex underground pipes, sewers and catch basins. Now it's your turn. Here are some tips to help you flood-proof your home.

Fix cracks in your foundation.

Ensure the ground slopes away from your house.

Clear debris from eavestroughs and downspouts.

Install a sump pump to remove excess water.

Install a backwater valve to prevent water and sewage from backing up.

Divert your downspouts away from the foundation.

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

For Love's dad, Cobain case isn't closed

While authorities recently re-examined the 20-year-old death of Kurt Cobain and determined it was in fact a suicide, at least one person is still alleging that Cobain's wife, Courtney Love, had something to do with it — and that person is Love's estranged father, Hank Harrison. "No doubt she was capable," Harrison reportedly told Radar Online. "I can't prove she pulled the trigger, but I can prove her involvement to a high degree of certainty."

James claims LiLo broke into his hotel room at 3 a.m.

Remember Lindsay Lohan's bang list? Maybe it wasn't so much a list of guys she had slept with as it was a list of guys who'd read her bedtime stories after she followed them around for a while. That's what James Franco claims happened to him.

Franco never actually slept with LiLo — they just made out a little, he told Howard Stern (via Gawker). "We were at this hotel during a very dark period of her history," he says.

"It seemed pretty damn clear that she liked me. I'd come home late to the hotel and she'd come find me. I knew which room she was in and I'd see through the window, like, 'Oh, there's another party at Lindsay's,' and she would come out to the pool area and find me.

"She even broke into my room one time because she was so at home there, I guess they just gave her the key. And so 3 in the morning I was on the couch, and I open my eyes and there's Lindsay in my room at 3 a.m. and it's like, 'OK, what do I do now?' I read her a story. I was in school, so I was like, 'All right, maybe I'll get a little homework done so I'll read her a story.'"

Franco may be the first famous gentleman to go on Howard Stern to brag about not sleeping with a beautiful woman.

While at a friend's wedding in New Brunswick last weekend, I found my roots in a bowl of homemade seafood chowder.

Growing up in Nova Scotia, a recipe of potatoes and just about anything from the ocean was more than a touristy treat in my house, its creation was a family tradition.

There were at least six different versions, from three generations, served at our gatherings. What they all had in common was a creamy consistency, which always caused trouble when it came to a wine match.

I'm in the white camp when it comes to chowder. No matter the recipe, the outcome is all about subtle flavours. The dark berry weight and forward tannins found in most glasses of red wine doesn't do the marriage (in your mouth) any favours.

Whites like those made from pinot grigio, unoaked chardonnay and sauvignon blanc work best. Chile's 2012 Santa Rita Reserva Sauvignon Blanc ($13.95 - $14.99) is fresh and tropical, with zesty citrus fruit and acidity that makes it a perfect partner with any chowder's cream and fish schtick. PRICES REFLECT RANGE ACROSS COUNTRY. SOME PRODUCTS MAY NOT BE AVAILABLE IN ALL PROVINCES.

Condiment

Chili Lime Salt

- 1 large fresh red chili
- 1/2 cup flaky sea salt
- finely grated zest of 2 limes

Remove seeds from chili and slice flesh into tiny pieces. Mix with the sea salt and lime zest in a mortar and pestle or food processor and pound or blitz to form a fine crumb. If you want to store the salt for later use, dry it out in the oven at 150 C for 30 minutes.

Makes 2 cups. ANNABEL LANGBEIN

Some dinners call for something light. Annabel Langbein, who brings good food into today's fast-paced world, shows us an Asian-inspired dish that takes 10 minutes to prep and five minutes to cook from her cookbook The Free Range Cook

Oodles of yum: Green Bean and Peanut Noodle Salad

This recipe serves six. ANNABEL LANGBEIN

THE FREE RANGE COOK
Annabel Langbein
gustotv.com

1. Cut the beans in half and boil them in salted water for 3 minutes. Refresh in cold water to retain their crunch and bright green colour.

Ingredients

- 6 handfuls (300 g) green beans, stalk ends trimmed
- 250 g rice stick noodles
- 1/2 cup roasted peanuts, roughly chopped
- 3 tbsp roughly chopped coriander
- 1 tbsp sesame seeds, toasted
- 2 cups bean sprouts

Dressing

- 1 tbsp sesame oil
- 2 tbsp grapeseed oil
- 2 tsp fish sauce
- 1/2 tsp salt
- ground black pepper

To serve

- lime wedges

2. Drop the rice noodles into a large pot of boiling water. Remove the pot from the heat immediately and allow to stand and cool for 10 minutes or longer. Drain the noodles then rinse in cold water.

3. Put the beans and cooked, drained noodles in a large serving bowl with the roasted peanuts, coriander, sesame seeds and bean sprouts.

4. Make the dressing by pouring sesame oil, grapeseed oil and fish sauce in a jar and shaking. Toss the dressing through the noodles and season to taste with salt and pepper.

5. Serve as a salad at room temperature or toss in a hot pan for 2-3 minutes for a stir fry side dish to serve with meats. Garnish with lime wedges to serve.

WATCH THE ANNABEL LANGBEIN FREE RANGE COOK MONDAY TO THURSDAY AT 5:30 P.M. EST, STARTING APRIL 28 ON GUSTO TV, CANADA'S NEW FOOD & LIFESTYLE CHANNEL. VISIT GUSTOTV.COM FOR FULL PROGRAM LINEUP AND MORE GREAT RECIPE IDEAS.

Cinco de Mayo

Date: Really?
Location: Everywhere

You might not be aware, but the 5th of May is celebrated because of a decisive Mexican military victory over the French way back in 1862. Of course, we've somehow managed to reduce it to simply eating and drinking things Mexican. But hey, a young professional has to eat and Mexican is one of our favourite cuisines. Check out the party at El Caballito, or hit up Fonda Lola on Monday night for a French twist on the traditionally Mexican day.

Tie One On

Date: May 7
Location: The Hoxton

No, we're not telling you to have a big night out. We're talking about a great Toronto charity called Homes First whose main goal is to provide affordable, stable housing and support to break the cycle of homelessness in our city. Up for auction at Tie One On will be scarves and ties donated from the closets of Charlize Theron, Julianne Moore, Reese Witherspoon, and many, many more. When's the last time you got to accessorize and help out our city at the same time?

Lana Del Ray

Date: May 13
Location: Sony Centre for the Performing Arts

Remember back in 2012,when everyone on the planet was forced to have an opinion on Lana Del Rey? Well, it's two years later and she's currently scorching her way across North America with her third full length album, Ultraviolence. So far, LDR is captivating audiences with her trademark hip-hop vocal cadence, breathy innuendo, and lush, orchestral, retro-pop sound.

Raptors

Date: May 2, 4
Location: ACC, Barclay's Centre

A few weeks ago we had the Raps in this very same column. And we're happy to say they've earned it once again. Heck, we even went to Brooklyn to support them. Whatever the Nets thought they were getting into when they tanked their way down to 6th place so they could play us, they were wrong. Just ask them how it felt when the Raptors won their first road playoff game in 13 years. #WeTheNorth.

CANFAR

Date: May 10
Location: Burroughes Building

The Canadian Foundation for AIDS Research's 4th annual Paint the Town Red will feature foods from some of the city's best vendors, a silent art auction of works from up and coming talents, and, of course, a dance floor with live DJ. Since 1987, CANFAR has awarded more than $18 million to HIV and AIDS research projects. Let's help keep it up.

QS MBA World Tour

Date: May 4
Location: InterContinental Toronto Centre

We're not sure if you know this, but getting an MBA is kind of a big deal. It turns out having a masters of business administration is, well, pretty good for business. So an afternoon spent speaking with admissions directors from top local and international business schools, obtaining personalized advice about your business school application, and networking with Ivy League MBA alumni sounds like a solid start to us.

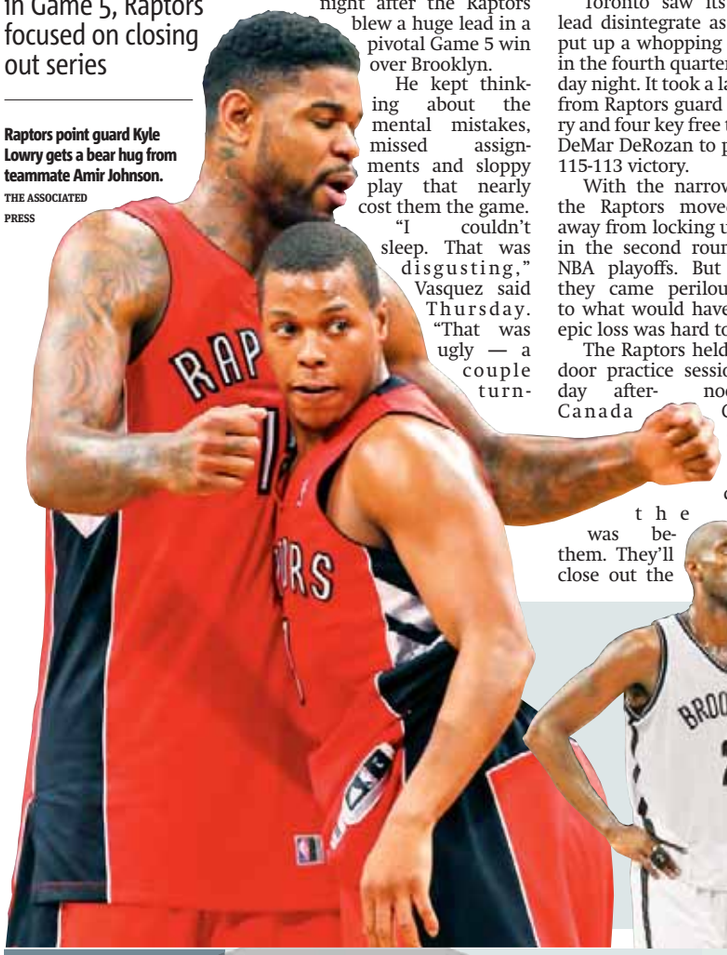
Not much sleep till Brooklyn

NBA playoffs. After nightmare averted in Game 5, Raptors focused on closing out series



Raptors point guard Kyle Lowry gets a bear hug from teammate Amir Johnson.
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Toronto guard Greivis Vasquez had a hard time getting any rest Wednesday night after the Raptors blew a huge lead in a pivotal Game 5 win over Brooklyn.

He kept thinking about the mental mistakes, missed assignments and sloppy play that nearly cost them the game.

"I couldn't sleep. That was disgusting," Vasquez said Thursday. "That was ugly — a couple turnovers, a couple fouls, a couple (baskets and fouls) for them. It wasn't us."

Toronto saw its 26-point lead disintegrate as the Nets put up a whopping 44 points in the fourth quarter Wednesday night. It took a late basket from Raptors guard Kyle Lowry and four key free throws by DeMar DeRozan to preserve a 115-113 victory.

With the narrow victory, the Raptors moved a win away from locking up a berth in the second round of the NBA playoffs. But the fact they came perilously close to what would have been an epic loss was hard to ignore.

The Raptors held a closed-door practice session Thursday afternoon at Air Canada Centre and emerged confident that the blip was behind them. They'll try to close out the Nets on the road in Game 6 on Friday night.

"The mental things going into each game — that was the lesson today, more so than thinking about closing out," Casey said. "We've got to again continue to improve and not make some of the mistakes we've been making."

Toronto's stars came up big before a raucous home crowd on Wednesday. Lowry had a 36-point night and DeRozan added 23 points and six rebounds.

Casey noted that it was one of DeRozan's strongest games of the series, adding he did a nice job getting out of traps so his teammates could attack the weak side of the floor. He also praised Lowry, who played one of his best games as a Raptor.

"Kyle's play — it carried us," Casey said. "Without his offence, we would have really struggled. But he ignited everybody and got us free-flowing up and down the floor."

Toronto led 62-44 at the half and had a comfortable 91-69 edge after three quarters.

However, on three occasions in the fourth quarter, the Raptors committed fouls beyond the arc to set up rare four-point play situations. Blown coverages also let Brooklyn's Joe Johnson heat up, and he scored 26 of his 30 points in the second half.

Ready to feast

"We're very humble but at the same time we're very hungry."

Done yet?

Paul Pierce and Kevin Garnett were expected to bring a championship mentality to Brooklyn, providing the skills, savvy and swagger the Nets needed to make a lengthy playoff run. It's hard to do all that from the bench.

- That's where they were for the entire fourth quarter of Game 5 at Air Canada Centre.

METRO RAPTORS VS. METRO NETS

After five games the Raptors have shown they belong in the playoffs, but it seems Brooklyn Nets fans — who are also Knicks fans, depending on which team is winning — are wondering how a squad with almost no playoff experience can match up with their veterans.

While they continue to look backwards, though, the Raptors have pulled ahead to a 3-2 series lead.

Should Toronto fans respect the NBA royalty we're facing? Absolutely. Garnett, Pierce, Kidd. These are future hall-of-famers. But they're what was, and the Raptors are what's next.

Look no further than the raving half-black-half Jewish fan on the sidelines for an analogy. Drake may never measure up to Brooklyn supporter Jay Z's success, but he is what's next.

Consider 2013's top draft pick, Anthony Bennett, and the consensus No. 1 for 2014, Andrew Wiggins. Both Toronto-born, both what's next.

In cities as diverse as Toronto and New York, we see every day that where you come from doesn't always dictate where you're headed. The Raps know this, but Nets fans don't seem to get it.

Despite DeMar DeRozan's 30-point games or Jonas Valanciunas's double-doubles, it's clear these young men are humbled. Many of them were kids when their opponents made their mark.

But from this humbleness comes a group of players who will remind the Nets what it means to win for their teammates, and for their city — not their personal legacies.

STEPHEN BALDWIN
Metro in Toronto

Give the Toronto Raptors a round of applause. They had a nice season. Now move aside and let a real playoff team go through.

No one in New York, make that Brooklyn specifically, would argue Toronto isn't a quality opponent. That was questionable going into the series, but the Raptors have shown good fight after a relatively easy Nets victory in Game 1.

And yet, when the games matter most and when they reach their most pressure-packed, it's veteran-laden squads which separate themselves. The series dialed up in intensity in Game 5 Wednesday night but the Raptors have never felt the heat of trying to close out an experienced team. They won a game at home in which they were favoured — barely. Game 7, yes there will be a Game 7, will have a different feel.

New York is the Basketball Capital of the World. Mark Jackson was born in Brooklyn. Chris Mullin was born in Brooklyn. Bernard King was born in Brooklyn. And yes, Michael Jordan was born in BK.

Toronto can forget about closing out a series on the mean streets.

The Raptors can use the 2014 playoffs as a learning experience. It will be good for them. Consider Paul Pierce, Kevin Garnett, Joe Johnson and Deron Williams to be their wise professors.

TFC's Henry expected to get back on the defensive

MLS. Brampton native has not played in the last three games due to a knee injury

All the promise Doneil Henry delivered with Toronto FC's backfield this season did not vanish with his injury.

It was merely put on hold.

That's why the expectation for this weekend's match with New England is that Henry returns to FC's lineup and picks up right where he left off almost a month ago.

"I feel more than ready to go, I just want to get out there and get back to help the team," Henry said Thursday as the Reds trained with what looked like their first full (or almost full) squad in weeks.

Henry was actually one of the early entrants to FC's long list of injured players in the early season.

The 21-year-old Brampton native tweaked his knee to the point where he missed the last three games as part of his recovery process.

Henry said the injury was the result of training between turf and grass surfaces, something unavoidable at the moment with Toronto's professional soccer club. The players must alternate between a modern, but undesirable, turf surface that covers their indoor facility to the grass at BMO Field and their outdoor training facility (both of which have suffered from a harsh winter).

Coach Ryan Nelsen had his charges practising on the grass as soon as possible — despite a cold and wet spring — while the team has dropped its last two games and filed as many as five players on the injury bay with hamstring injuries.

The hardest part for Henry was balancing his training efforts, now a hidden "skill" for all Reds players, and dealing with the increased probability of injury until a new grass surface is installed at BMO Field.

"Just not being with the team is hard," Henry said.

"My knees and my ankles a bit were bothering me, then one time my knee buckled outward from under me and I knew it was going to (be a problem)."

Wild aim for payback against reigning champs

Patrick Sharp thought the Chicago Blackhawks were going to play the Colorado Avalanche. Then he thought they were going to play the Minnesota Wild. Then he thought they were going to play the Avs again, and on and on it went.

While the Wild and Avalanche played an epic Game 7 on Wednesday night, the Blackhawks were hanging on every goal.

"It was crazy. Back and forth. Every time there was a goal scored, I was thinking we were playing that team or the other team, right down to the very end," Sharp said.

The very end had the Wild celebrating after Nino Niederreiter's second goal of the game lifted Minnesota to a 5-4 overtime win at Colorado, setting up a rematch from last year's playoffs. Minnesota lost to Chicago in five games in the first round, and the Blackhawks went on to win their second NHL title in four seasons.

The Blackhawks will host the Wild in Game 1 on Friday night.

Cabrera has early lead on Flores and Mickelson

Phil Mickelson kept it entertaining to the very end Thursday and finished one shot behind Angel Cabrera in the Wells Fargo Championship.

Cabrera played in the morning and thrived on the new Bermuda greens at Quail Hollow. He made seven birdies in a round of 6-under 66. It's his lowest score of the year and only the fourth time he shot in the 60s.

The wind was strong and swirling in the afternoon. That didn't stop Mickelson. He made birdies off the pine straw, made a long par save on one hole and three-putted another. Mickelson finished with a 6-iron from a tough stance in the bunker that led to par and a 67.

Martin Flores also shot 67. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Whoa Johnny. Opinions mixed on football's Manziel

As he discussed the possibility of quarterback Johnny Manziel being picked by Cleveland in the upcoming draft, Browns linebacker Quentin Groves made a small sign of the cross.

A prayer that he's coming? A plea that he stays away?

Groves' intentions with his gesture weren't clear.

Like just about everything around Johnny Football, there's no definite answer.

The most polarizing player to enter the NFL in a while, Manziel, is being closely linked to the Browns, who own the No. 4 overall pick in next week's draft and have been seeking a franchise quarterback for more than a decade.

Cleveland's inability to land a QB either in the draft or via free agency or blind luck may be the single biggest reason the Browns have only made the playoffs once since 1999 and seem to change coaches every year.

There are those who believe Manziel can save the Browns.

Johnny Manziel GETTY IMAGES

Others feel the Texas A&M quarterback's dazzling skills — and size — won't translate to the pro game.

He's dynamic.

He's too small.

He's a game-changer.

He's self-absorbed.

He's a hard worker.

He's a head case.

He's charismatic.

Everyone has an opinion on Manziel, the 2012 Heisman Trophy winner who has been projected as being picked anywhere from the top 5 to the bottom of the first round.

Horoscopes

♈ Aries
March 21 - April 20
There will be many claims on your time and energy today, so be selective in what you agree to do or you may exhaust yourself. You know that it's better to do one job really well than ten jobs poorly.

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
You may be tempted take a break and you have earned that right but the planets urge you to keep going. Make the most of your energy surge while you can — you know how quickly things can change.

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
What you do for others now will come back to you many times over a few weeks hence when the Sun moves in your favour again. You don't have to sacrifice much — just put others' needs first occasionally.

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
It seems you have been taking one friendship for granted and if you let the situation carry on this way you may drift too far apart to ever get back together again. Give them a call.

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
Give your physical, mental and emotional batteries a chance to recharge. The good news is you have already made a big impression on someone in a position of power.

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
You may be practical but you are allowed to dream too and one dream is close to coming true. Go all out today and over the weekend to push past any remaining obstructions.

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
You may have to wait a few weeks before you get the chance to put your big idea into effect. The more time you give it to percolate through your brain, the more likely it is to be an outstanding success.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
Others may be obstructive today but you don't have to make an issue of it. Treat it as an opportunity to show how patient and relaxed you can be.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
You will be annoyed if something holds you back today but later you will thank your lucky stars that you were forced to stay where you are. If fate conspires to keep you from something there is a reason.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
Take difficulties in stride and find ways to get something constructive from them. The Sun in Taurus at this time of year has a hugely positive effect on your outlook on life.

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
The good news is you seem to be handling challenges well and the even better news is it won't be long before you are rewarded. Everything evens out in the end, so believe that the good times will return.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
You may be tempted to muddle through a problem and hope it all comes right in the end, and maybe it will. But wouldn't it be easier if you called on the help of an expert? Not even a Pisces can do it all. SALLY BROMPTON
